Phishing, or scam, emails often look legitimate by using an actual company's logo and indicating alleged problems with your account. The message will ask you to take some actions, like clicking on a link to confirm or update your personal or payment information.

Don't Fall Prey to Phishing

Ways to defend yourself and report it:

- Think twice before clicking on links, particularly in an unsolicited email.
- If you think the email could be legitimate, call the company to ask about any issue with your account.
- Never provide your personal or financial information in response to an unsolicited message.
- If you did respond to the email and suspect a scammer has your information, visit identitytheft.gov to take necessary steps for any compromised information.
- If you click on a link or opened an attachment, like a fake invoice, update your computer's security software and run a scan.
- Take actions against the scammers by forwarding the phishing email to the Anti-Phishing Working Group at report-phishing@apwg.org and reporting the attack to the Federal Trade Commission at reportfraud.ftc.gov.
